COVID-19 & TRAVEL IMPACT STUDY

FINAL RESULTS

SURVEY OF ONTARIO, WINNIPEG & MONTEAL RESIDENTS

METHODOLOGY

The survey was conducted with 3,000 Canadian residents from June 2 to 18, 2020. This includes 2,000 Ontario residents, 400 Winnipeg residents, and 600 Montreal area residents. A random sample of panelists were invited to complete the survey from a set of partner panels based on the Lucid exchange platform. These partners are typically double opt-in survey panels, blended to manage out potential skews in the data from a single source.

The margin of error for a comparable probability-based random sample of the same size is +/- 2.19%, 19 times out of 20.

The data were weighted according to census data to ensure that the sample matched Canada's population according to age, gender, educational attainment, and region. Totals may not add up to 100 due to rounding.

The main report includes Ontario only results. Results from Winnipeg and Montreal can be found in their own appendix.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

HOW DO TRAVELERS FEEL ABOUT SUMMER/FALL 2020 TRAVEL?

Travel in summer 2020 means playing it safe.

Most travelers aren't taking any risks and will take the necessary steps to eliminate what risks they can, in part by following public health guidelines like physical distancing. For some, the risks of contracting COVID, especially far from home, is enough to make them stay home.

Of all the different types of concerns as a result of COVID, Ontarians feel most strongly about traveling to places that are certain to follow COVID protocols, and places that they are familiar with (likely because they have a sense of whether or not the protocols will be in place).

61% Knowing that operators are following COVID-19 protocols is important.

54% Being familiar with an operator is important.

Ontario travelers are:

- Staying closer to home (purposefully choosing destinations that are close, and can be done as a shorter trip)
- Eliminating as many interactions with the public as possible (very little comfort with public transit, activities that involve crowds, destinations that are densely populated.
- Doing what is familiar. Comfort with accommodation type, transit, and activities increases among those who stayed there/participated in that activity in the past.

WILL COVID-19 INCREASE OR DECREASE THE NUMBER OF TRAVELERS TO ONTARIO THIS SUMMER?

Likely increase. More are considering Ontario as a destination and those interested in traveling, are traveling in Ontario. Especially an Ontario destination close to home.

Few have actually made a booking but those comfortable venturing out will likely stay local.

60% Will be comfortable travelling in their region within 3 months of restrictions being lifted.

50% Will be comfortable travelling outside their region (within the province) within 3 months of restrictions being lifted.

And those who previously chose out-of-country travel, are more likely to stay closer to home.

43% of US frequent travelers are more likely to travel within their own region.

43% of Int'l frequent travelers are more likely to travel within their own region.

49% of other province travelers are more likely to travel within their own region.

That said, overall feelings about travel are very apprehensive. Whether or not people are comfortable with activities or accommodations, they just aren't that eager to start booking.

6% Said they were willing to jump right back into travel once restrictions were lifted.

67% Have no intentions to even start planning a trip, let alone book one.

WHO WILL BE TRAVELING TO ONTARIO DESTINATIONS?

Those who are travelling are the type of travelers whose favourite travel activities are “COVID friendly”. The kind of people who travel to visit family/friends, or outdoor open spaces.

40% of family lovers will travel within their region ASAP.

43% Of outdoor space seekers will travel within their region ASAP.

+10

Retirees, are interested in making Ontario travel plans. And while millennial urbanites are most likely to be planning their post-COVID travel, they don't seem to be planning to visit an Ontario destination. Economy travelers are also more comfortable than premium travelers, with Ontario destinations.

37% of retirees will travel within their region ASAP.

WHERE WILL PEOPLE BE GOING?

The less dense an area, the more comfortable people will be travelling there.

64% Comfortable traveling to a park or other outdoor space this summer.

32% Comfortable traveling to a large urban centre this summer.

travelers will be looking for shorter trips.

65% Have booked/certain to/likely book a day trip to an Ontario destination.

32% Have booked/certain to/likely book a week-long trip to an Ontario destination.

And looking to stay close to home.

77% Will prefer to stay closer to home, as opposed to travelling to further destinations.

69% Say "preferring to stay closer to home for staycations" describes them perfectly/pretty well.

WHAT WILL THEY BE COMFORTABLE DOING?

People are most comfortable with accommodations and activities that limit the number of interactions with others, and allow them to maintain physical distancing. Second most important is the size of operations (i.e. prefer a chain hotel rather than a bed and breakfast).

81% Say the phrase "I will prefer small group activities..." describes them perfectly.

78% Say the phrase "I will prefer less populated destinations because of COVID-19" describes them perfectly.

ACTIVITIES

69% Completely/mostly comfortable with outdoor activities.

68% Completely/mostly comfortable visiting with family/friends.

20% Completely/mostly comfortable with sporting events.

20% Completely/mostly comfortable visiting with concerts/music festivals.

74% Very/somewhat comfortable traveling to their second property.

77% Very/somewhat comfortable traveling to stay with family/friends.

34% Very/somewhat comfortable staying at a bed and breakfast.

37% Very/completely comfortable staying at a vacation rental property.

WHAT WILL THEY BE COMFORTABLE DOING?

Ontarians are more comfortable with activities that involve minimal interactions with the public, allow them to easily practice physical distancing, and give them greater control of their situation. There is still hesitation to do some activities, even among those that love them.

	% completely/ mostly comfortable	Those that love to do this activity

WHAT CAN OPERATORS DO?

Many of the barriers for post COVID travel this summer are out of the control of operators. Travelers will likely be drawn to activities/accommodations that allow them to follow public health guidelines (notably the ability to practice physical distancing). Not all operators will be able to meet this baseline.

Operators can't change the location of their businesses (from downtown Toronto to small town Stratford), nor can they change the type of business they operate (switching from a B&B to a chain hotel, or a concert venue to a provincial park). For these operators, the very nature of their business would have to change for people to feel comfortable.

For operators that are able to meet these 'structural needs' for travelers, there are two other key pieces to focus on.

Operators that are opening/plan to open in the next few months need to understand and meet travelers expectations on: adherence to COVID-19 protocols, and familiarity.

WHAT CAN OPERATORS DO?

SHOW ADHERENCE TO COVID-19 PROTOCOLS AND PROCEDURES.

When looking for travel information, travelers are most likely to turn to provincial/federal government guidelines. As an operator ensure that you meet these specific recommendations and then show your guests that these are the regulations you are following.

74% very/somewhat likely to look at federal government websites for travel advice.

74% very/somewhat likely to look at federal government websites for travel advice.

70% The ability to see clear communications on adherence to protocol is critical/important.

BUILD FAMILIARITY, AND SUBSEQUENTLY, TRUST.

Right now, your past customers are your best asset. Aside from COVID protocols, familiarity is the most important travel factor right now. Travelers are more likely to pick places they have already been, or already know about.

This is also one of the best ways to increase your customers base. The second most consulted source for travel info is crowd sourced info, like family and friends. The more you speak to your current base about following protocols, they are more likely they are to share this with their family/friends.

71% say the phrase "I'm more likely to visit somewhere I visited before because I know what to expect, describes them perfectly.

71% very/somewhat likely to look to recommendations from family/friends.

SUMMER 2020 PLANS

SUMMER 2020 PLANS

- Whether or not they feel comfortable with specific activities, very few Ontario travelers are comfortable with the idea of post-COVID travel. Only 6% will jump right back in.
- Within three months of restrictions being loosened, 62% would travel somewhere within the province. With restrictions being loosened now, we can assume this is the group that is likely to travel this summer/fall.
 - This summer, travel within the region is more popular among economy travelers, outdoor space seekers, and family lovers.
 - And those who travelled elsewhere (to the US, Internationally) are more likely to travel within the province.

SUMMER 2020 PLANS

- The guiding principles for Ontario travelers this summer are:
 - Take shorter trips
 - Remove as many public interactions as possible (less public transit, less activities that involve crowds, less densely populated areas, least 'public accommodations')
 - Do what is familiar (i.e. if you've taken lots of weekend trips, take weekend trips)

POST-COVID TRAVEL COMFORT

POST COVID EXPECTATIONS

POST-COVID EXPECTATIONS

- There are 5 main types of concern related to COVID-19. Ability to physically distance, ease of returning home, knowing the operator will adhere to public health recommendations.
 - Ontarians feel most strongly about being able to follow COVID-19 protocols and communications, and their familiarity with a destination.
- There is definite overlap amongst the groups who hold each of these concerns. Those who are concerned about physical distancing are also highly concerned about protocols (82%), being close to home (65%). Those who are concerned about being close to home also have concerns about following protocols (83% of this group).

PHYSICAL DISTANCING	53%
BEING CLOSE TO HOME	45%
COVID-19 PROCEDURES AND COMMUNICATIONS	61%

TRAVEL EXPECTATIONS HEAVILY INFLUENCED BY COVID-19 EXPERIENCE

Travelers are expecting that they can continue to adhere to public health advice, even when they travel. And they expect operators to assist them with meeting these expectations.

While cost is still a factor, it certainly is not the driving factor for decision making this summer.

When deciding where to go and what to do for travel this summer, how important, if at all, will the following factors be in your decision making?

WITH LIFTED TRAVEL RESTRICTIONS BUT NO VACCINE...

Travel decisions will be based on:

- Least number of interactions with strangers
- Less dense activities/destinations
- Proximity to your home

Imagine that travel restrictions are now lifted, and public health officials say that you can travel but need to still be careful and try to distance yourself from others. There is also no vaccine yet for COVID-19. Do the following describe your thinking perfectly, pretty well, only a little, or not at all?

TRAVEL DECISIONS BASED ON MINIMIZING RISK

Again, proximity to home and small groups are key.
Right now, familiarity is also important (69% will travel to destinations they were already planning on).
Travel is also not a big financial priority.

86% say right now is the time to play it safe.

TRAVELERS WANT TO HEAR ABOUT, AND BE ABLE TO ADHERE TO PUBLIC HEALTH ADVICE

For travelers to consider booking everything they will need to be ensured about:

- Cleanliness
- How physical distancing protocol can be met

Familiarity of a destination plays a key role, because they can picture how these expectations might be met.

Aside from public health expectations, cost expectations have shifted as well. Around half say they will be paying more attention to costs post-COVID.

Thinking about the upcoming summer and fall, compared to your travel habits last year, are you more or less likely to choose the following travel destinations this sum

TURN TO SOURCES THAT ARE OFFICIAL, FAMILIAR

Official government websites will be the most likely sources of information.

Next is crowd-sourced information (from review sites) or recommendations from someone they know.

Information from destination and attraction websites will be used the least, in particular information posted to social media.

When looking for information on how/where to travel in a post COVID-19 world, which sources will you likely use

Physical distancing: older travelers, female travelers and economy travelers are most concerned, as are retirees. Interestingly, those who prefer indoor activities are no more concerned about physical distancing than those who like outdoor activities.

BEING CLOSE TO HOME

Being close to home is also more concerned for older, female, economy budget travelers and retirees. It's a bit more of a concern from those with indoor interests, and visiting family.

CONCERNED BY PROFILES

PROTOCOLS-PROCEDURES AND COMMS

These are a bigger concern for older travelers, female travelers, economy travelers and retirees. And slightly more of a concern among family lovers.

FAMILIARITY

As with the others, this is a bigger concern with older travelers, economy travelers and retirees.

CONCERNED BY PROFILES

COST

Unlike other concerns, cost is a bigger concern for younger travelers, including millennials urbanites. It is still a bigger concern for women than men, but concern is more equally divided amongst economy and premium travelers.
